RECESS SAVES A NOMINATION

Fight In Madison On The Senatorship Has Become A Bitter Battle For Supremacy.

CONNOR RULES WITH AN IRON HAND

Had Adjournment Been Taken Then The Caucus Tonight
Would Have Meant Stephenson's Election
As Senator.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 15.—The Wisconsin senatorial ballot in the joint legislative convention this noon took the form of a battle at arms' length. It is conceded that if another republican caucus is held Isaac Stephenson will be nominated, so the Esch and Hatten people, with the assistance of the democratic legislators, procured the joint convention by carrying a motion to take a recess instead of the customary adjournment for a day.

Same Vote
The official ballot gave Stephenson practically the same vote he had last night, of 44, and Senator Sanborn, Hatten's manager, moved that the convention take a recess until five o'clock. Senator Martin, a recent Stephenson acquisition, moved to adjourn for the day.

A Recess
The motion to adjourn was defeated by a vote of 49 to 74, and then came an amendment to adjourn until 7:30. The amendment was accepted by Sanborn and various other amendments came in, but they were declared out of order peremptorily by Chairman Connor.

Swings the Gavel
He even declared the motion to adjourn out of order, and amid shouts of "tag rule," "be fair," "don't bulldoze," and similar protests from the Stephenson people declared the Sanborn recess motion carried, and stepped from the platform.

Saved Situation
The reason for preserving the joint convention was to avoid holding another republican caucus, which would apparently have nominated Stephenson.

Are Excited
After the excitement of Chairman Connor's arbitrary rulings died away the members began scurrying around to keep their lines intact and gain accessions. The democrats partly broke from their party lines this noon and about half a dozen came over to Hatten and Esch. The only hope of heading off the Stephenson move now is for Esch to withdraw and attempt to swing his men to Hatten, together with a sufficient number of democrats to make the required number of 67.

Will Help Him
Stephenson men declare this cannot be done, that the moment the Esch camp breaks a sufficient number will go to Stephenson to prevent the success of the plan. The Stephenson men are by no means frightened, and say that after this "one last attempt" the Marinette man will be united upon. Hatten refuses absolutely to withdraw in favor of Esch, and some Esch people are still unwilling to go to Hatten.

Need Demies
This is the reason why the opponents of Stephenson had no hope of uniting in the republican caucus, but were forced to take the chance of getting enough democrats and Esch people to kill Stephenson in the joint convention. The ballot this noon resulted: Stephenson, 44; Hatten, 26; Esch, 28; McGregor, 3; Bird (democrat), 11; Rummel (social democrat), 4; Weiss (democrat), 2; Sanborn, Hudnall, Brundage, Douglas, Rose, Davies, and Thompson, 1 each. Anti-Stephenson forces will caucus this afternoon.

Occupy Much Time.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Birmingham, Ala., May 15.—Many visitors are arriving in Birmingham to attend the annual meeting of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church, officially known as the Presbyterian church in the United States, which will meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the First Presbyterian church. The assembly will be called to order by the retiring moderator, Dr. Allen C. Hall. The assembly is the governing body of the Presbyterian church in the south, the court of final appeal in matters of doctrine. Its work is managed chiefly through executive committees, which are elected each year. Considerable business will come over from the last assembly. The subject of closer relations with other Presbyterian churches will again be taken up for consideration. The work of the missionary bodies, the educational institutions and other organizations of the church will be reviewed and acted upon. Birmingham has made elaborate arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the visitors.

This meeting is to mark an epoch in the history of denomination in America as it is to witness the final steps in the union of the Cumberland Presbyterians and the larger body of American Presbyterians, after a separation of nearly a century. The proposition to consolidate three of the great Presbyterian seminaries, the Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, the McCormick Theological Seminary of Chicago and the Western Theological Seminary of Pittsburgh, is to be brought before the general assembly for discussion. The missionary situation is another matter that promises to take up much of the attention of the meeting. Rev. William F. Roberts of Philadelphia, the chairman of the union committee that so successfully negotiated the merger with the Cumberland Presbyterians, probably will be named as Moderator. Seattle and Kansas City will contest for the honor of entertaining next year's meeting of the general assembly.

LAWYERS MAKE REPORT OF CONDITIONS OF RAILROADS

Harriman's Interests Are Given Drubbing In Their Findings To Interstate Commerce Commission.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, May 15.—A portion of the recommendations of Attorneys Frank B. Kellogg and Charles Severance to the Interstate Commerce Commission, concerning the Harriman railroad investigation has been published here. It reviews the testimony, and holds that railroad competition has been suppressed in an area equal to a third of the United States; that the Illinois Central and San Pedro routes are all in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. It recommends the attorney general to institute proceedings to annul these agreements. It also recommends there should be new and effective laws to prevent the inflation of securities and declares the profits of great railroads in the far west are being used to buy stocks and control systems in the east instead of building more roads for the development of the west as they should be.

Merely Recommendations
Washington, D. C., May 15.—The recommendations of Kellogg and Severance in regard to the Harriman railroads are not yet accepted and confirmed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, so they stand at the present time merely as recommendations to the commission, and not as the report of the commission itself. Interstate Commissioners Harlan and Knapp say the commission has not yet made its report.

Lowe of Fitchburg, Mass. The association is national in scope, numbering upwards of one thousand members. There was a large attendance at the opening, the south being especially well represented.

Mayor Rebyrn, speaking in behalf of the city of Philadelphia, extended a cordial greeting, and Governor B. R. Comer of Alabama responded for the visitors. When these formalities had been concluded and the organization of the convention perfected (the association took up the regular program of business.

President Lowe delivered his annual address. Other addresses were presented during the forenoon, as follows: "Immigration," Hon. E. J. Ward, commissioner of immigration of South Carolina; "Qualifications of the Model Textile Designer," Dr. E. W. France, director of the Philadelphia Textile school; "Patents," George O. Draper, Hopedale, Mass.; "Exports of Cotton Goods," Prof. J. W. Wilson, president of the Philadelphia museum; "Concrete Construction for Cotton Mills," P. This afternoon was devoted to the members of the association to an inspection of the elaborate exhibition that is being held in the First Regiment armory as a side feature of the convention. The exhibition is most comprehensive in its scope, including exhibits of the most improved cotton machinery in use in this country, and abroad, together with elaborate displays of the finished product.

Tomorrow morning there will be more papers, addresses and discussions dealing with questions of a technical nature, and in the evening the convention will conclude with a banquet for which the most elaborate preparations are being made. The scheduled speakers for the banquet include Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, W. W. Finley, president of the Southern railway, E. W. Robertson of Columbia, S. C.; Governor B. R. Comer of Alabama, Governor B. Glenn of North Carolina, Governor Edwin S. Stuart of Pennsylvania, and Congressman A. S. Burleson of Texas.

Before and After.
 "There is a great difference between the actions of a woman before and after marriage," remarked the sad-eyed man with the absent hair.
 "What's the answer?" queried the youth who was on the verge of graduating from a correspondence school.
 "Give a woman a five-dollar bunch of flowers before marriage," explained the party of the sad part, "and she will say: 'Oh, thank you, George!'
 But, really, I cannot allow you to spend so much money on me. After marriage when George hands her seven-eighths of his weekly salary she looks at it contemptuously and says:
 'Is that all I get?'"

CONVENTION ENDS
WITH A BANQUET

STATE GATHERING OF KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HELD TUESDAY.

ELABORATE BALL GIVEN

Both Banquet and Ball Well Attended by Prominent Men from Throughout the State.

Carroll Council of the Knights of Columbus were the hosts last evening at a banquet at the Myers hotel and a ball at Armory hall for the visiting Knights of Columbus and invited guests. Both affairs culminated a most successful state convention of the order at which matters of importance were decided upon and officers elected for the coming year. The local committee in charge of the entertainment of the visiting Knights had made every arrangement for their comfort and entertainment and except for the disappointment, owing to the weather, of not having the automobile ride everything went as scheduled.

Re-elect Officers
 At the business sessions held in the Eagles' Hall both morning and afternoon twenty-seven lodges throughout the state were represented by two delegates each, who with the present state officers and the past officers of the order brought the total number in attendance to over seventy. The old officers were re-elected and Milwaukee was chosen as the next convention city the second Tuesday in May, 1908. The following were the officers elected:

State Deputy—John F. Martin,
 Green Bay.
 State Secretary—W. D. McGuire, Baraboo.
 State Treasurer—John J. Sherman,
 Appleton.
 State Advocate—E. L. Kelly, Manitowish.

State Warden—H. J. Mills, Beloit.
 Delegates to National Convention to be held at Norfolk, Va., this summer—John F. Martin, Green Bay; W.
 D. Dwyer, Superior; A. J. Gallagher,
 Green Bay; August Rebon, Milwaukee.

Eighty-five Banqueted

At seven o'clock eighty-five members of the order and invited guests
 met at the Myers hotel and partook of the viands prepared for them. They were seated at the regular tables in the large dining-room, the overflow being accommodated in the ordinary.
 Cheers were passed at the conclusion of the meal and Toastmaster J. J.
 Cunningham called the gathering to order. Mayor S. B. Hedges was called upon and in a most gracious manner, thanked the Knights for their presence in the city, expressed his approval of the order and the work done and offered the keys of the city to the visitors if they were desired for any purpose. He took occasion to say a few nice things about Janesville and invite any of those present who desired to promote their business interests to move to this city and enter into business. His talk was timely and well received by the visiting Knights who showed their approval by liberal applause.

Other Speakers
 State Deputy John F. Martin of Green Bay was then called upon and in well chosen words thanked the citizens of Janesville for their kindness, the Carroll Council for their arrangements, and told briefly of the order
 he heads in Wisconsin, of its past, present and future and its aims and ambitions. But twenty-five years old it is international in its scope and has one hundred and seventy-five thousand members throughout the world. Its two salient points—Charity and Fraternity—are tearing down
 the barriers of bigotry that have existed between catholic and non-catholics and the spirit of patriotism sur-plants all. The right of man to wor-

SHORT TALKS BY
L. T. COOPER.

"HOW TO KEEP HEALTHY"

"I am not a believer in too much medicine. Don't take medicine all the time. Get a good tonic and take it
 until the old vitality returns then stop. A general
 tonic and system
 renovator should be taken in the spring
 and fall. For this purpose, there is nothing better on earth than Cooper's
 New Discovery
 but I advise no one to take this medicine or any other all year long. Give nature a chance. Establish regularity in movement of the bowels. Drink plenty of water but not at meal time.
 Chew your food very carefully and eat slowly. Sleep with the window open. Don't be afraid of fresh air and do not eat a great deal of grease. Be regular at meals. Go to bed and get up at the same hour each day if possible. Take a bottle of Cooper's New Discovery twice a year and your life
 should be long and healthy."

Here is what Cooper's New Discovery
 does for run-down people who need a tonic:
 "I have been sick for a number of years with stomach trouble and also from backaches and headaches. Sometimes I became so weak I could not gain strength. I felt tired to death all the time. Nothing I took helped me, and hearing so much of the Cooper
 medicines I decided to try them."
 "I have taken two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery with the most remarkable results. I now feel entirely well. My appetite is fine, I sleep well, have no more headaches and am quite strong again. I cannot express my thanks for what these medicines have done. Sallie Middleton, 1357

ship God as he sees fit is dominant.
 August Rebon of Milwaukee was then asked to speak and told several amusing stories in a delightful manner.
 speaking also of the order. He represented and the great good it might do in the world towards drawing all classes together for the common good. His witty stories proved him to be a charming after-dinner speaker
 and he was warmly applauded.

An Ex-Mayor
 Victor P. Richardson was then called upon as an Ex-Mayor and explained to the guests of the evening, he had expected to be on exhibition, but not to speak. He told of a new order, the Ex-Mayors' society, whose lodge rooms were at 23 Lemon street,
 who have now under consideration
 the name of Mayor Hedges for membership and explained in stories his inability to deliver a speech. He also expressed pleasure at Janesville's being the meeting place of so glorious an order as the Knights of Columbus and thanked the gentlemen for the honor conferred upon him by being an invited guest at the banquet.
 John S. Dougherty of La Crosse then spoke on the fraternal insurance side of the order and believed that fraternal orders, uniting the young men of the country together, strengthened the citizenship and patriotism of the country. Mr. Dougherty is a strong speaker and was listened to with attention.

The Lords Favored
 James L. O'Connor, former attorney General of the state and a speaker of prominence, was the first to cast any questions upon Janesville.
 He stated he had learned with respect that the automobile ride promised to the visitors and prevented by the rain, had saved the local council much confusion. He was informed that Janesville had but two automobiles and that one of them was out of commission. A few minutes later Mr. Jeffris corrected this statement by making the announcement Janesville had three and that one was not able to be used. He also suggested that the good Lord had seen the predicament of the citizens of Janesville
 and had sent the rain to aid them.
 He thought that any city upon which the Lord smiled in such a manner was worthy of being visited again and turned Mr. O'Connor's remarks into an invitation to the order to make Janesville their convention city in the future.

The Hospital
 Mr. O'Connor spoke with feeling of the establishment of the city hospital by catholics and non-catholics and expressed his approval of the work being accomplished. At the conclusion of Mr. O'Connor's address Dr. Buckmaster of the man who had much to do with starting the move for the establishment of Mercy hospital, was called upon and told several good stories as well as expressing his pleasure in having been instrumental in aiding in the establishment of a city hospital under the control of the Sisters of Mercy. Mr. Madden of Ashland was called upon, but became so excited, saying that if he had been an orator he would have been nominated for congress last fall
 as the voters of Ashland informed him the only thing they had against him was he could not make a speech.

Closing Words
 William Dougherty, President of Carroll Council, was called upon for a few words and then M. G. Jeffris was invited by the assembled Knights at large to speak. He replied in a jovial manner, told stories and closed by inviting the order to return to Janesville for future conventions. He stated that as a non-catholic he admired the order and that he was glad to see the catholics and non-catholics getting together. As an example of this he explained he had once been camping with a catholic priest and a Congregational minister and had seen the two of them sleep under the same log. At the conclusion of Mr.
 Jeffris' speech Mr. Cunningham announced that the complimentary ball was in session at Armory Hall and all were invited.

Delightful Ball
 The ball itself was a most delightful affair and was enjoyed by all who attended. The visiting Knights were much pleased with their reception and many expressed themselves as surprised at Janesville and Janes-ville's hospitality. Many left on the evening trains for Madison and the remainder returned to their homes
 this morning.

STRANGE CONDITION
OF THE WEATHER MAP

Today's Map Is Streaked with the Cold Wave—Wisconsin Weather
 for Past Week.

The weather map this morning showed a streak north and south from the Lake Superior region to the Gulf of Mexico with parallel lines marked
 "cold." The government weather forecaster last night predicted that the season is not yet one of the grimmest tricks on its grim record by furnishing possible snow flurries and forcing the mercury to 40 degrees and perhaps down into the '30's. It would not be surprising if it should make today a record breaker in point of rigidity for so late in May. The cold wave, it is said, hails from the Lake Superior country, where it was snowing last night. The weather-er will probably warm up this afternoon, and maybe (with a strong accent on the qualifying word) this will be the beginning of respectable May weather. But the jumps of the mercury from top to bottom of the tube and vice versa are expected to bring discomfort to those persons who neglect to carry their furs and summer
 hats in the same valise.

According to the weather man in the government office in Milwaukee,
 the past week has not been as good as might have been. The following is his report taken from the whole state:
 "The unseasonably cold and partly cloudy weather which has prevailed
 for several preceding weeks continued during the greater portion of the past week. In the northern half of the state the temperatures went below the freezing point nearly every night, and on the morning of May 11th a minimum temperature of 15 degrees was reported at Koenigsberg. In the southern section the temperature was slightly below freezing and a killing frost occurred on the morning of the 11th. The precipitation was very light and most of it occurred in the form of snow which melted about as fast as it fell. The winds, which had been mostly fresh northerly until Saturday, veered to the southerly Saturday night and became brisk and occasionally high during Sunday. This caused a rapid rise in temperature over the state, and so the week closed comparatively warm, but the temperature was falling in the extreme western part of the state. The continued low temperature during this spring has kept the soil unusually cold and all vegetable growth is very backward. The grass is scarcely green in the northern counties of the state, while even in the southern counties the buds on such trees as the oak have hardly started. A warm rain would be very beneficial to plant growth."

ENJOYED PICTURES
OF PASSION PLAY

A Good Sized Audience Witnessed Animated Reproduction of Drama
 of Oberammergau.

Next to making the pilgrimage to the quaint little village of Oberammergau located in the mountain fastnesses of the Bavarian Tyrol, a few hours' ride
 from Munich, where the passion play is presented by the villagers
 every ten years in fulfillment of a solemn vow, many decades ago on condition that their town should be spared from the pestilence which ravaged the surrounding hamlets, the reproduction by moving pictures of the scenes which are enacted throughout an entire day are of peculiar interest to the Christian world. A good sized audience saw the reproduction of these pictures by the Lyceum Bio-Sceno-graph Co. at the Carville M. E. church last evening and found them interesting and impressive to a high degree.
 There were also some illustrated songs
 by Miss Anderson and the Messrs. Adkins and Van Pool. The pictures will be presented again tonight.

CONDUCTOR LEAHY
BEFORE COMMISSION

Gave Statistics of Passenger Traffic
 on St. Paul Company's Mineral Point Division.

At Madison today the state railway commission is carrying on an investigation of the passenger service furnished by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company on its Mineral Point division. The matter was brought before the body by businessmen in various cities between Janesville and Mineral Point, and on the various branches. One of the principal witnesses was Thomas Leahy, C. P. of this city who is conductor on the daily Mineral Point-Janesville and Janesville-Mineral Point passenger trains. He furnished statistics regarding passenger traffic and upon his testimony will be determined the question of ordering various improvements that the public has requested.
 Among the desired changes is the addition of a buffet car to Conductor Leahy's train.

 Jones, who is a natural handy man,
 does all manner of things for his children that they ought to do for themselves. He confesses it as a fault, and says it is really laziness in him, because it is easier for him to do household chores than it is to follow up the children and train them to do them. "They will miss me a good deal when I go," says Jones. "I can see them now, sitting around with tearful eyes, and saying: 'After all, we never had a man that did the chores
 like father.'"—Life.

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, May 15, 1907.—What We Drink as Tea.—The last dodge on tea adulteration that we have seen is the mixing of charcoal with black tea. A gentleman brought into our office some pieces of charcoal which he alleged were taken out of some tea purchased at one of the groceries in town. He stated that out of a pound and a half which he bought, in his judgment fully one third was charcoal. It is pleasant to know that the mixture is harmless, and we ought to be thankful that nothing worse is used in the deterioration.

Speaker Colfax Coming

Our readers will be glad to learn that the Hon. Schuyler Colfax, the present eloquent and popular speaker of the House of Representatives, has consented to deliver his famous lecture, "Across the Continent," in this city on Saturday evening, June 1st.

Before The Footlights.

An honor which very seldom befalls to an actor, was bestowed upon Mr. Curt Stark, the leading juvenile of the Milwaukee Pabst Theatre Co. While appearing at the "Power's Theatre" in Chicago the other day, he was presented with a beautiful laurel wreath by the regular visitors of the gallery, as a token of his popularity.

Mr. Stark will play the part of the "Prince" in the original German version of the most successful comedy, "Alte Heideburg" at the Myers Theatre this evening. At the closing of the season, Mr. Stark will return to the "Fatherland" to fill an engagement at the Royal Theatre in Berlin.

As so favorable an impression did "To Die at Dawn" make, the opera house manager has already commenced negotiations for a return engagement. A most striking example of loyalty and fidelity coupled with the triumph of love over position and station in life is portrayed in the production of "To Die at Dawn" which will appear at the Myers Theatre on Saturday, May 18, matinee and evening.

During the last act the hot blood of youth leaps to the rescue of outraged manhood, and the ever ready steel weapon is called upon to settle the dispute. While the glowing sparks are flying from the swiftly whirling sharpened, forged blades of steel, "Nina" appears in time to see her lover disarm his opponent. Thurston seizes the fallen weapon, and as he jingles the stab the unsuspecting Morton; there is a scream of horror and cry of warning from Ruth, and the recent victor turns only in time to catch the point of the murderous weapon, on the hilt of his own blade, a moment the two stand glaring at each other, honest defiance meeting crafty cunning, when with a swift movement, Thurston is disarmed, and with a cry of baffled rage, falls to the floor as the point of Morton's knife seeks his heart in retribution. By those who have witnessed this wonderful scene, it is said that few, if any, plays today before the public portray such variable phases of human emotion. Love, hate, revenge, honor, pleading, cunning, defeat, sympathy are all blended in one swiftly moving panorama of incidents, resolving culmination as finisce das nature scenes like the above, with which the play abounds, have made "To Die at Dawn" the wonderful success it is, and it promises to meet with the same big reception here.

"The Man of the Hour," the play of politics and love which has proved the one great success of the present season in New York city, is announced for a run in the Illinois theatre, Chicago, beginning last Sunday night, May 12. This does not mean that the run of the play in New York city is ended; for "The Man of the Hour" will be an attraction there throughout the summer, throughout the autumn, and the coming winter and in the summer of 1908 again. This statement represents the kind of a hit the play has made there, where it was staged last December, and has been running the average theatre eight times a week ever since.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce AGAINST THE Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its conspicuous heading published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of women's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $200,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other poisonous or habit-forming drugs are or ever were contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statement was wholly and absolutely false.

In the retraction printed by said Journal these facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction setting small type and made inconspicuous as possible. The matter was however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State with proper evidence and verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

ALLEGED FOOTPAD HELD FOR TRIAL IN COURT TODAY

Story of Midnight Assault Related by Wesley McMillan of Whitewater is Believed by Police—Prisoner a Crippled Giant.

Because he refused to tender the "two bits" demanded by a wayfarer with a withered right arm who accosted him on West Milwaukee street shortly before twelve o'clock last evening, and walked alongside of him as he turned onto Academy street, continuing his importunities, John Wesley McMillan, a young man residing on a farm six miles west of Whitewater, was thrice struck down, kicked, and relieved of currency and change amounting to about five dollars. His assailant was a tall man and made the withered arm an excuse for asking alms, saying that he must have the money to secure lodging for the night. McMillan, himself in search of sleeping quarters, was on his way to Adam Holt's hotel after transacting some business in the city. He is a big, brawn man but the assault so completely took him by surprise and stunned him that he was unable to put up any defense when the highwayman again struck him down as he was attempting to rise. It was while he was in a state bordering on insensibility that his trousers' pocket was rifled.

After securing the cash, the footpad departed and McMillan, badly bruised and bleeding from a flesh wound in the forehead resulting from the impact of the first blow, dragged himself to the Northwestern depot. He told his story to Ticket Agent Bert Rutter but the latter must have been incredulous. At any rate McMillan had to put a tickle in the slot, so he says, before he could telephone to the police station.

Officers John Brown and Thomas Morrissey, after securing a description of the criminal, started out to make a survey of the northern area of railroad tracks. As they neared the Jackson street crossing they ran upon a tall individual who had just left the rails and was slinking along that thoroughfare in the direction of the city hall. Outwardly, at least, he answered to the descriptions given, even to the withered arm. With many protests and stoutly insisting on his innocence the man accompanied them to the police station where he gave his name as Edward Hamilton and his home as Chicago. McMillan was sent for and upon his arriving at the city hall and making an inspection of the prisoner, he declared that the six-footer the police had captured was his assailant beyond a question of a doubt.

Hamilton has evidently, at some time or other had his body racked and battered in some terrible encounter or accident. Besides the maiming of his right arm, something has happened to his limbs which cause him to reel and totter as he walks. Otherwise he is a giant, with fair hair, uneasy, shifting eyes, a short chin but heavy jaw and a mouth that can relax into a harsh and bitter smile.

He and his accuser both appeared in court this morning. The warrant charging him with robbing McMillan of $3 was read and after he had pleaded not guilty and waived examination, his trial was set for Friday, May 20, at 2 p. m. Bail was fixed at $500. He was unable to furnish signers for his bonds and will have to remain in the county jail, pending the trial. The victim, McMillan, is not a drinking man and his frank and honest manner early convinced the officers that his story is correct in every particular.

THOMAS GRIFFIN CASE WAS AGAIN ADJOURNED

Whereabouts of May Stevens, the Complaining-Witness, Are Apparently Unknown.

Last summer a man named Claude Montagne was sent to the state penitentiary to serve a term for a serious offense against a young woman named May Stevens. The warrant issued for Montagne also charged Thomas Griffin with being implicated in the crime, but the latter could not be located until very recently when he returned to this section. In the meantime the girl has disappeared and the officers do not know where her present abiding place may be. The case was adjourned some time ago and this morning it was again adjourned, this time to July 15.

Attention, Odd Fellows! All Odd Fellows of the city are requested to meet at West Side Odd Fellows Hall at 12:30 Thursday noon to attend in a body the funeral of our late Brother J. T. Little. The services will be held at the Presbyterian church. By order of committee.

BALTES LET GO ON OWN RECOGNIZANCE

Sentence Suspended for Six Months in Case of Clinton Blacksmith, Charged with Assault.

Frank Baltes, the Clinton blacksmith, who was alleged to have assaulted a young man named Emmet Conroy who is recuperating from severe injuries at the hospital, appeared in municipal court this morning. William Dougherty, the attorney appointed to defend him, had made a careful investigation in Clinton and found that whatever the accused man had done had been without malice. One version of the story is that the two men were drinking whiskey near the railroad tracks when Conroy was overtaken by a fit and fell backward, striking his head against a hand-car, and that Baltes in attempting to rouse him and in dragging him to a hotel first beat him on the bottom of his feet with a lash and when this failed slapped and pounded him vigorously on the face and about other portions of his body. He was arrested on the supposition that he had been with a club and inflicted the wound on the back of the head. It was found at Clinton that the blacksmith's wife had a little babe five weeks old and two other children, and that the entire family was in need. On recommendation of District Attorney Fisher, after Baltes had entered a plea of guilty to the charge of assault and battery, sentence was suspended for six months and he was released on his own recognizance.

MRS. ERDMAN FINED FOR ABUSIVE WORDS

Palm Street Resident Was Also Given a Severe Lecture by Judge Fifield This Morning.

About a fortnight ago a complaint charging the use of foul and abusive language was filed against Mrs. Mary Erdman who resides on Palm street. When the officers went to serve the warrant the officers were persuaded that the woman wanted was sick in bed. Mrs. William Dowd who claims to have endured all manner of petty annoyances at the hands of her neighbor for many years, became exasperated at last and filed the complaint. Mrs. Erdman had sufficiently recovered from her indisposition to appear in court today, and enter a plea of guilty with reservations. Judge Fifield, but he would accept no reservations and he gave the quarrelsome lady a certain lecture about the propriety of tossing out and ashes when the wind was blowing towards a neighbor's loaded clothes lines, using language no woman should use, and kindred topics, which she will probably remember for some time. He also warned her that the penalty for a second offense would be severe. In this case he levied a fine of $5 and costs amounting to $3.20. Mrs. Erdman walked right out of the court room when no one was nigh and when Mr. Thorpe called after her, she said that she was going home after the money.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Tippetted under an archway of bridal ferns festooned with white ribbon and crowned by doves. Little Miss Crystal Snyder of Footville, carried the ring in a basket of lilies of the valley. NEAR FINAL STAGE OF FORMING JURY

SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS MADE IN THE FAMOUS CASE.

MAY BEGIN ON SATURDAY

Counsel for Defense Satisfied Jury
Box Will Be Filled by End of Week—Membership in Mil-lita a Bar.

Boise, Idaho, May 15.—Substantial progress toward the formation of a jury to try William D. Haywood for the alleged murder of Frank Steen-berg, twice chosen the chief executive of this state, was made on Tuesday, the third day of the trial. The selection of talesmen halted for three solid hours over chairs five and six but once those seats had been filled progress was very rapid. At adjournment for the day counsel for the defense had completed the examination and temporarily passed the tenth talesman. They had but two more to examine in chief and a reservation to examine if they desire to exercise the right, two of those temporarily passed Tuesday, so with reasonable progress the twelfth talesman should be passed to-day in time to open the way for the first peremptory challenge, whose exercise marks entry to the final stage of the formation of the jury. Counsel for the state still adhere to the belief that the jury will be completed by Saturday.

Clarence Darrow and Edgar Wilson, for the defense, divided the work of examining talesmen, and their questions took the same wide range outlined by their associate, Mr. Richardson, and freely sanctioned by Judge Fremont Wood. Mr. Wilson added to the long train of connections, readings, influences and association that might tend to disqualify a juror, that of membership in the Idaho militia which at various times has been called upon to quell the strike disorders. The examination failed, however, to disclose any military men among the talesmen.

J. L. Waggoner, the member of the original panel who figured as the complainant in the Yost case, was challenged by the defense on the general ground that his experience in this case unfitted him for service in the case, a contention which he admitted was well founded, and Judge Wood sustained the challenge. Two talesmen from the special venire developed irreconcilable prejudice against circumstantial evidence and went down before challenges from the state.

The free circulation of socialist papers throughout Ada county was shown again, this time during the examination of Talesman "Pride."

Examination Is Thorough.
Soldon has either prosecution or defense been permitted by any court to search so deeply into the history or the present mental attitude of a prospective jurymen as in this case. E. F. Richardson, who Monday conducted the examination, among other things invariably goes into the relations of the talesman under examination with union labor, and with what is known as the Citizens' alliance, an organization of the citizens of Boise opposed to union labor.

It is very evident that the defense proposes to lay much stress throughout the case on what they allege to have been an interference on the part of President Roosevelt and of Secretary Taft. The line of questioning invariably goes into President Roosevelt's "undiscoverable citizens" letter, and into the speeches delivered by Secretary Taft at Pocatello and Boise during the last gubernatorial election in which Mr. Taft supported Gov. Gooding and commended his attitude on what was then known as the "Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone case." Up to the present not a single jurymen examined has admitted that the expressions of either the president or the secretary of the supposed attitude of Gov. Gooding would have any effect on his decision.

Longshoremen Still Hold Out.
New York, May 15.—With both sides seemingly confident of winning, there is little change in the longshoremen's strike situation. President Connors of the Longshoremen's union declares that conditions are better than he had hoped for. He says he has secured the cooperation of the Philadelphia Longshoremen's union, and that members of that union will refuse to unload ships sent there from New York.

IS NOT IN FIGHTING MOOD

JAPAN WOULD WELCOME ALLI-ANCE WITH UNITED STATES.

Baron Ozawa, Special Representative of the Mikado, Voices That Sentiment in an Interview.

New York, May 15.—"Japan has looked earnestly for an alliance with the United States, because, in substance, we have always regarded this country as a real ally of Japan. We are desirous of having such an alliance. If it could be arranged. As long though, as any misunderstanding like the anti-Japanese feeling in San Francisco exists it might not be possible to bring about an alliance."

Thus spoke Baron Ozawa, member of the house of peers and special representative of the emperor in an interview Tuesday night. The baron, who is the vice president of the Japanese Red Cross society, was commissioned by his majesty to ascertain the existence of anti-Japanese feeling in this country and to express the thanks of the emperor to those Americans who aided the Japanese during the severe famine in northeast Japan after the war with Russia.

Baron Ozawa said that Japan had no dreams of further territorial expansion in the Pacific, and declared that it was unnecessary for her to acquire other possessions.

DIPLOMATS IN A TURMOIL

Dislike Proposition of Protectorate
Over Central America.

Washington, May 15.—The proposition ascribed to President Diaz, that the United States and Mexico should establish a joint protectorate over a union of Central American states, has caused great commotion among the Latin-American diplomatic representatives here. Senator Calvo, the Costa Rican minister; Dr. Mejia, the Salvadoran minister; and Senator Toledo (Herrera), the Guatemalan minister, called in a body at the state department to discuss the subject with the officials. There was nothing of an official character to enlighten them, and it did not develop that the American government had so far had any exchanges with the government of Mexico beyond those involved in the common effort to bring about a termination of the hostilities that had existed between Honduras and Salvador and Nicaragua.

City of Mexico, May 15.—President Diaz received a representative of the Associated Press at his home and denied emphatically the statements attributed to him in an alleged interview published in the New York Herald. The president declared that he had never spoken of a protectorate, or a nominal federal union of Central American states, and that the remarks relative to the advisability of the federation of the Central American countries were never uttered by him.

ILLINOIS SOLONS MEET AGAIN

Gather to Determine Action on Deep Waterway Project.

Springfield, Ill., May 15.—Both houses of the legislature met at noon to consider what action, if any, is to be taken before sine die adjournment on the proposed extension of the drainage canal as provided in senate bill 544. No vote on the deep waterway project can be had until Friday, if it is decided to push the bill.

Notwithstanding Gov. Deneen's efforts to secure action on the extension of the drainage canal through to Lake Joliet, the first step in the proposed deep waterway between the lakes and the gulf, determined opposition will undoubtedly be made to any such action at present, not only from the members from the Joliet district, but from senate and house leaders as well.

Members of both houses are asking, if there is any good reason why the state should turn over to the Chicago drainage district all the power possibilities that senate bill 544 gives to them, and that if this bill is not more a question of power than of deep waterway extension.

Smelter Employes Strike.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 15.—Six hundred men employed by the United States Mines & Smelter company in its copper smelters at Bingham Junction, 15 miles from here, walked out because the company refused them a flat raise of 50 cents a day. The men are now getting from $1.75 to three dollars a day. The lead furnaces are not affected.

Pure Food Bill Signed.

Springfield, Ill., May 15.—After careful scrutiny at the hands of both Gov. Deneen and State Chemist Bryan, the pure food bill passed muster and was approved by Gov. Deneen. Chemist Bryan stated that he considered the new Illinois act as the best pure food law in the United States, excepting the national law.

POLITICAL FIGHT IN OHIO IS TO DEATH

FORAKER OR TAFT MUST QUIT
PUBLIC LIFE.

MEETINGS, CALLED OFF

Gathering of Republican State Central Committee, to Have Been Held
To-day, Canceled by Chairman Brown.

Columbus, O., May 15.—For the present, at least, the probability of a spectacular pitched battle between the Taft and Foraker-Dick factions in this state has passed. The fight is still in progress, however, and the indications now are that it will terminate only with the retirement from public life of either Senator Foraker or Secretary Taft.

Tuesday Chairman Walter F. Brown, of the Republican state central committee, called off the meeting of that body, which was to have been held here to-day, by the dispatch of the following telegram to all members of the committee: "Owing to indefinite postponement of party conference by senator, call for meeting state central committee is hereby rescinded."

The decision to rescind the call was reached by Chairman Walter F. Brown at noon Tuesday, after a series of conferences with prominent Republicans, chief among whom were Gov. Harris and Arthur J. Vorys, the manager of the Taft campaign. The opinion of Chairman Brown was that inasmuch as the committee meeting had been requested by Senator Dick as an adjunct to the general conference, and as the larger meeting had been canceled by the parties who had advocated it, there was no especial need for the state central committee to meet alone.

This decision was not entirely in harmony with the opinions of many of the Taft following in various parts of the state, and throughout the morning telephone and telegraph messages poured in upon Chairman Brown and Mr. Vorys urging that the meeting of the committee be insisted upon. Many of these dispatches urged the importance of a show-down among the members of the committee, declaring that the result would be that the majority would be for Taft, and not with the two senators as has been claimed. Chairman Brown, however, decided that no actual good would follow a meeting of the committee at this time and called the meeting off.

The Foraker people insist that a meeting of the committee would show that the party organization is still with him and Senator Dick. To this the Taft managers reply that Chairman Brown came out in favor of an endorsement for Taft when he issued a statement Monday night, declaring that if the conference called by Senator Dick had been held it would "beyond any doubt have given a unanimous endorsement to Secretary Taft."

Brazilians at Washington.

Washington, May 15.—Another naval delegation from the Jamestown exposition arrived here Tuesday as the guests of the United States government. It consists of the representatives of Brazil and includes Rear Admiral Duarte Muet de Bacellar, commanding the Brazilian fleet now anchored at Hampton Roads, his staff and all the principal officers of the fleet.

San Francisco Cars Stopped.

San Francisco, May 15.—At the corner of Third and Market streets Tuesday brick bats were hurled at a ferry bound Castro street, car filled with passengers. One passenger, an old man, was struck in the face and bled profusely. Officers charged the crowd and scattered it. The brick throwers escaped.

The Hilarious Russians.

Once, speaking about Yegor, Payel said: "Do you know, Andrey, the people whose hearts are always aching are the ones who joke most?" Fine Health In Open Air.

The healthiest persons in the world are gypsies and they live in the open air, but there is an erroneous idea that gypsies are people who defy the elements to destroy their health. On the contrary, they are very careful, indeed, of their health, even though living out of doors. They never go to bed with the draft blowing over them, but have free circulation around them, yet protected from rain and wind. While sometimes seemingly scantily attired, they always are warmly clothed beneath, wearing warm underclothing. The consumptive who go to places for their health are now living exactly as the gypsies, and because of the disease being considered contagious, they must live in tents. It is here that the efficacy of pure air is being fully demonstrated, for it often effects a cure if the patient is not too weak when the treatment begins.

Extravagance in Dress.

Very few persons outside of the glittering circle of our enormously rich families, who constitute what is referred to as "the best society," can understand how any young woman in this or any other country can spend upon her wardrobe such vast amounts of money as are expended by the daughters of some of these families. The history of the world does not show such reckless extravagance in the way of dress. Nor for the matter of that, does the history of the world show so riotous a use of money as that practiced by our very rich in their strictly social diversions. Happy is the lot of the man or woman who is not tempted to such foolish indulgences, which take the edge from life's real joy!

Human Ant-Eaters.

There is a Chinaman in New York who has a sign over his door that reads, "Strange Food Exotics." What to eat says that he sells a hundred of the funny little gray biscuits that he keeps with his other odd stock every month at $2.50 each. The biscuits are made from the dried and compressed bodies of African white ants, and there are people who can eat them without saying "ugh!"

DECISION FAVORS SHIPPERS

RULING OF INTERSTATE COM-MERCE COMMISSION.

Must Be Given the Benefit of Lowest
of Two Rates Between the Same Point—Case in Question.

Washington, May 15.—A decision rendered by the interstate commerce commission is of notable importance, because in it the commission holds that where two rates between the same point are in force, the shipper must be given the benefit of the lower.

The case was that of the American Grass Twine company against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad company, the Mutual Transit company, the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company and the Boston & Maine railroad. The evidence disclosed that the complainant made a shipment of grass twine matting and rugs from St. Paul, Minn., to Boston via Duluth over these carriers' lines, upon which it was charged a rate of 62 cents per 100 pounds; this rate was a combination of rail rate of 23 cents to Duluth plus a lake and rail rate of 39 cents from Duluth to Boston. At the date of the shipment lake and rail joint through rates via Duluth were not effective, but a rate via lake Michigan ports of 45 cents per 100 pounds and an all rail joint through rate of 49 cents were in force. The commission holds that under the special and peculiar circumstances disclosed upon the record, the 62-cent rate on such shipment was unreasonable and that the 45-cent rate in effect from St. Paul to Boston via Lake Michigan ports at the time of the shipment affords a reasonable basis for fixing the rate for the service rendered at the same amount.

The complainant is awarded reparation for the difference between the 62-cent and the 45-cent rates on its shipments, to be paid by Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company and the Mutual Transit company, as having received the whole of such difference. As to the other defendants the complaint is dismissed.

EUROPE IS BADLY IN NEED OF WHEAT

SPECULATION NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR HIGH PRICES.

CROPS ALL BELOW PAR

Germany Has for Six Weeks Been Purchasing Cargoes—Shortage All
Along the Danube Is Reported—
Russian Situation.

London, May 15.—The European wheat situation, according to the generally accepted view here, resolves itself into questions of supply and demand. It is explained that it is not speculation alone which has brought about the present high prices. The situation has been strongly influenced by buying for the demand. Germany has been purchasing Australian and Argentine cargoes for nearly six weeks, the shortness of stocks in that country being caused to some extent by selling considerable quantities of both rye and wheat to Russia, as last year's Russian crop suffered damage. Germany, therefore, must now get about 4,000,000 quarters more between January 15 and the end of July this year than she did during the same period last year. This fact is regarded here as mainly instrumental in causing the "squeeze," because the River Plate shipments are required by the United Kingdom, Germany and the Mediterranean, especially Italy.

Damage in All Countries.
It is also acknowledged that considerable damage has been done to the winter crops in Germany, Roumania, Hungary and along the Danube, extending to about 40 percent. One Bulgarian report says that in places it is about 80 percent.

From all Europe, France excepted, the advices are unfavorable. The Russian crops are not only bad, but the political uncertainty in that country is also having a depressing effect on trade. The millers have been keeping down stock to the lowest point possible, living from hand to mouth, expecting a drop in prices.

Cold weather in Great Britain also to some extent helps the advance. In the past, generally speaking, when there has been a shortage of wheat in the west there has been plenty in the east, and vice versa, but this year both are bad, and naturally the price goes up.

The representative of a large Roumanian dealer informed the Associated Press that when he left Roumania some weeks ago the outlook was bad, and that his advices fully confirmed the depression of the situation. He further said that unless rain fell very shortly the spring crop would be ruined and the export of wheat would be prohibited.

Bad in Hungary.
Budapest, May 15.—The report of the ministry of agriculture says that the winter has been bad for grain. Winter wheat, rye, barley and corn suffered from the excessive frosts and insects, and much of the land was untilled on account of the unfavorable spring. The existing sowings show little development.

Are Sowing Little Grain.
Warsaw, Russian Poland, May 15.—Several Russian papers say that the landed proprietors in the central and Volga districts are sowing little grain, because they fear agrarian strikes. The same conditions prevail in the Don tracts.

The merchants and factors of south Russia, refuse to sign foreign grain contracts, believing that the harvests will be inadequate to the local demands.

A MAKER OF HISTORY

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by LITTLE, BROWN and COMPANY.

Some of the women were following them in a leisurely sort of way behind. Miss Fielding was there walking a little apart. She carried her hat in her hand. The wind, which was blowing the skirts of her white cloth dress about her, was making havoc in her glorious hair. She walked with her head thrown back, with all the effortless grace of youth—a light heart, an easy conscience. He deliberately left his place and walked back to meet her. She waved her hand gaily. There was color in her cheeks now, and her eyes laughed into his. The shadows were gone. He felt that this was madness, and yet he said what he had come back to say.

"I thought that you might be interested to know, Miss Fielding, that you will meet the gentleman—with the same name as your friend—this evening. Lord Runtun has been good enough to ask him to come up and dine."

She nodded gaily.
"What a coming of sentimental memories his coming will evoke," she declared. "Be nice to me, won't you, and help me dispel them?"

"Perhaps," he said, smiling with a great relief, "I might prefer to try and construct a few on my own account."

"Go and do your duty," she commanded, laughing.

Duncombe hastened to his place. His eyes were bright. He felt that he was walking upon air.

"What a double distilled ass I nearly made of myself!" he muttered.

CHAPTER XVI.

SHE came into the room a little late, and her entrance created almost a sensation. Duncombe only knew that she wore a black gown and looked divine. Lady Runtun murmured "Paquin" with a sigh and frowned.

"Those girls might at least leave us black," she murmured to her neighbor. "What pearls!"

Duncombe stepped forward to meet her. He could not keep the admiration from his eyes. Her shoulders and slim, graceful neck were as white as alabaster, her hair was a gorgeous brown kissed into fine gold, glimmering as though with the touch of some hidden fire. She moved with the delightful freedom of absolute naturalness. He murmured something which sounded ridiculously commonplace, and she laughed at him.

"Do you know that you are going to take me in?" she said. "I hope that you are prepared to be very amusing. Do tell me which is your friend."

Then Duncombe remembered Andrew, who was standing by his side. He turned toward him, and the words suddenly died away upon his lips. Andrew's tall frame was shaking as though with some powerful emotion. He was standing with his head thrust forward as though listening intently. Duncombe set his teeth.

"Will you allow me to present my friend, Miss Fielding," he said. "Andrew, this is Miss Fielding. Mr. Pelham, Miss Fielding."

She held out her hand and took his passive fingers.

"I am so glad to know you, Mr. Pelham," she said pleasantly. "Sir George gave me quite a shock today when he spoke of you. I was once very nearly engaged to an Andrew Pelham in Baltimore, and I had most distressing visions of all my old sweethearts turning up to spoil my good time here."

Andrew's voice sounded odd and restrained.

"I have never been in America," he said.

"You need not be afraid that I am going to claim you," she declared. "You are at least a foot taller than my Andrew. You don't even inspire me with any tender recollections of him."

"There is a sort of reason for that," Duncombe answered. "Shall I explain it?"

"Do."

"Pelham lives, as I think I told you, in a small country house near Eynesbury," Duncombe began. "The hall in his village was occupied by a young man—a boy, really—and his sister. Early in the year the boy, who had never been abroad, thought that he would like to travel a little in Europe. He wandered about some time in Germany and Austria and was coming home by Paris. Suddenly all letters from him ceased. He did not return. He did not write. He drew no money from his letter of credit. He simply disappeared."

The girl was proceeding tranquilly with her dinner. The story so far did not seem to interest her.

"His sister, who went over to Paris to meet him, found herself quite alone there, and we suppose that she devoted herself to searching for him. And then, curiously enough, she too disappeared. Letters from her suddenly ceased. No one knew what had become of her."

She looked at him with a faint smile. "Now," she said, "your story is becoming interesting. Do go on. I want to know where you and Mr. Pelham come in."

"Pelham, I think," he continued gravely, "was the oldest friend. He sent for me. We were old college chums, and I went. This trouble with his eyes had only just come on, and he Baron, I do hope that you have not taken too much exercise."

"My dear young lady," he answered, bowing, "I never felt better in my life. Be thankful that it is not your hard fate to be my dinner companion. I am so hungry that I should have no time for conversation."

"On the contrary," she declared, "I almost regret it. I much prefer to do some of the talking myself, but I seldom get a chance. Will you promise to give me a show tonight, Sir George?"

"As long as you permit me to say two or three things which are in my mind," he answered, lowering his voice a little, "you may do all the rest of the talking."

"Dear me, I am curious already," she exclaimed. "What are the two or three things, Sir George? Why do you see, nearly every one has gone!" she added suddenly. "Come along!"

She laid her hand upon his arm, and led him away. Soon he was by her side at the table. Their companions were uninteresting. Andrew was out of sight. Duncombe forgot everything else in the world except that he was with her.

Their conversation was of trifles, yet intimate trifles. The general talk buzzed all round them. Neither made any effort to arrest it. To Duncombe she seemed simply the image he had created and worshipped. Suddenly, come to life. That it was not in fact her picture went for nothing. There was no infidelity. The girl who had existed in his dreams was here. It was for her that he had departed from the even tenor of his ways, for her he had searched in Paris, for her he had braved the horrors of that unhappy voyage. Already he felt that she belonged to him, and in a vague sort of way she too, seemed to be letting herself drift to be giving color to his unconscious assumption by her lowered tone, by the light in her eyes, which answered his by all those little nameless trifles which go to the sealing of unwritten compacts.

Once her manner changed. Her father, who was on the opposite side of the table, a little way off, leaned forward and addressed her.

"Say, Sir George, where did we stay in Paris? I've forgotten the name of the place."

"Hotel d'Albion," she answered, and at once resumed her conversation with Duncombe.

But somehow the thread was broken. Duncombe found himself watching the little gray man opposite, who ate and drank so sprightly, who talked only when he was spoken to and yet who seemed to be taking a keen but covert interest in everything that went on about him. Her father! There was no likeness—no shadow of a likeness. Yet Duncombe felt almost a personal interest in him. They would know one another better some day, he felt.

"So you have been in Paris lately?" he asked her suddenly.

She nodded. "For a few days."

"I arrived from there barely a week ago," he remarked.

"I hate the place!" she answered. "Talk of something else."

And he obeyed.

The second interruption came from Andrew. During a momentary lull in the conversation they heard his first, clear voice talking.

"My time was up yesterday, but I find so much to interest me down here that I think I shall stay on for a few more days if my host remains as hospitable as ever."

"So much to interest him," she murmured. "Are not all places the same to the blind? What does he mean?"

"He is not really blind," Duncombe answered, lowering his voice. "He can see things very dimly. The doctor has told him that if he wears those glasses for a few more months he may be able to preserve some measure of eyesight. Poor chap!"

"He does not attract me, your friend," she said a little coldly. "What can he find to interest him so much here? Do you see how he keeps his head turned this way? It is almost as though he wished to listen to what we were saying."

"There is a sort of reason for that," Duncombe answered. "Shall I explain it?"

"Do."

"Pelham lives, as I think I told you, in a small country house near Eynesbury," Duncombe began. "The hall in his village was occupied by a young man—a boy, really—and his sister. HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

Coming of Warm Weather Forces Them Out, Causing Itching, Burning Skin Eruptions.

The blood and skin are so closely connected that whatever affects the one has a corresponding effect on the other. When the blood is pure and healthy the skin will be soft, smooth, and free from all eruptions; but when the blood becomes infected with some unhealthy humor the effect is shown by rashes, eruptions, boils and pimples, or other disfiguring and annoying skin disease.

The skin is provided with countless pores and glands which act as a drainage system to rid the body of impurities through the perspiration that is constantly passing through these little tubes. There are other glands that pour out on the skin an oily substance to keep it soft and pliable, otherwise it would become hard and dry from constant exposure to wind and sun. When the blood becomes filled with humors and acids these are thrown off through the pores and glands, burning and irritating the skin and drying up the natural oils so that we have not only Acne, Eczema, Salt Rheum, etc., but such dry scaly skin eruptions as Tetters, Psoriasis and kindred troubles.

These humors find their way into the blood through a disordered or deranged condition of the system. There is a certain amount of waste or refuse matter collected in the body every day. This is useless in nourishing or keeping the system in health, and nature intends that it shall find an outlet through the channels of bodily waste. As long as these members perform their duties properly the blood remains pure and free from infection; but when from any cause they become dull and sluggish, this refuse matter is left to sour and be taken into the blood in the form of humors and poisons. The skin is a perfect index to the blood; when we see one afflicted with a skin disease, or pimples, rashes, eruptions, blotches, etc., constantly appearing, we know that down deep in the blood a humor has taken root, and instead of supplying nourishment and strength to the fine, delicate tissues of the skin, it is pouring out its acid and unhealthy accumulations.

The skin is not only affected by the humors generated within the system, but poisons from without, such as Poison Oak and Ivy, Nettle Rash, etc., as well as poisons from metals, acids, etc., enter through the open pores and glands, and so thoroughly do they take root in the blood that they are ever present, or return from year to year to annoy the sufferer.

The treatment of skin diseases with salves, washes, lotions, etc., is along the wrong line. True such treatment relieves some of the itching and discomfort, and aids in keeping the skin clean, but it does not reach the real cause of the trouble, and at best such things are only palliative and soothing.

A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only cure for humors in the blood. S. S. S., a gentle acting, safe blood purifier, made entirely of vegetable ingredients from nature's forests and fields, is the proper treatment. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and neutralizes the acids and humors, thoroughly cleansing and purifying the blood, and curing skin diseases and affections of every kind. It supplies to the blood the fresh, nutritive qualities necessary to sustain the skin and all other parts of the body, and rids the blood of any and all poisons. S. S. was practically helpless—miserable, more helpless than the ordinary blind person, because it was all new to him.

This boy and girl were his old and dear friends. He was longing to be off to Paris to search for them himself, and yet he knew that so far as he was concerned it would be simply wasted time. He showed me the girl's photograph.

"Well?"

"I went to his place."

"And did you find either of them?"

"No."

"I wonder," she said, "why you have told me this story?"

"I am going to tell you why," he answered. "Because when Pelham heard you laugh last night he was like a madman. He believed that it was the voice of Phyllis Pornton. And I—I—when I saw you, I also felt that miracles were at hand. Look here!"

He drew a photograph from his pocket and showed it to her. She looked at it long and earnestly.

"Yes," she admitted, "there is a likeness. It is like what I might have been—years ago. But will you tell me something?"

"Of course."

"Why do you carry the picture of that girl about with you?"

"I leaned toward her, and at that moment Lady Runtun rose from her place."

"In the winter garden afterward," he whispered. "You have asked me the very question that I wanted to answer!"

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak kidney nerves. The kidneys like the heart and stomach, and their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone is futile. It is a waste of time and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is dark, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell.

FABLE OF THE PANSY.

Entire Family May Be Traced in Flower's Gay Petals.

Lovers of this pretty flower may be interested in the fable concerning it. The blossom has five petals and five sepals. In most pansies, especially of the earlier and less highly developed varieties, two of the petals are plain in color and three are gay. The two plain petals have a single sepal each, and the third, which is the largest of all, has two sepals. The fable is that the pansy represents a family, consisting of husband, wife and four laughing twins, two of the latter being step-children of the wife. The plain petals are the step-children; with only one chair; the two small gay petals are the daughters, with a chair each, and the large gay petal is the wife, with two chairs. To find the father one must strip away the petals until the stem and pistil are bare. They have a fanciful resemblance to an old man with a flannel wrap round his neck, his shoulders upraised and his feet in a bathtub. In France the pansy is universally called the stem-mother.

STYLES OF THE SEASON

DEBUTANTE'S DRESS OF WHITE—PRETTY FASHION FOR NINON DE SOLE—SWEET OF SEVENTEEN

Japan has conquered the world of fashion. Evidently to conquer is the privilege of this country—anyway, just now it seems its métier. The world of dress is in arms to receive it, literally up in arms, for every sleeve bears traces of the Japanese in its extensive width and limited length, and all the cloaks hang kimono-wise from the shoulders, while embroidery runs riot on garments of every description. Not necessarily Japanese in design, I admit; but still the world of fashion takes immense pride in its embroidery of many colors, caring little from which country its patterns may be inspired, and amongst many successes in cloaks I would chronicle one of black not lined with soft silk and chiffon, trimmed with embroideries of many colors, alternating with designs of cut crestone, worked round with ribbons and gold thread. A gorgeous garment of much elegance—and much expense.

Nearly all of the short-waisted dresses worn last winter were made in a sort of semi-princess style. The bodice portion was tight-fitting and the skirt half-corset, half princess. Now quite a different outline is in favor; the waist-line is placed about three inches higher than it really ought to be, and the skirts are, for the most part, slightly gathered. I am now speaking of afternoon and evening dresses. Happily for the tailor-made morning, costume, our waists are still permitted to retain their correct place and outline.

It is hardly necessary for me to point out that a gathered skirt, arranged in a short-waisted manner, is capable of making its wearer decidedly bunched. Only an exceptionally slender figure can carry off one of these costumes with perfect grace, and one trembles to think of the possibilities of the future.

The mitten sleeve is rapidly coming into favor, and Redfern must be given the credit of reviving this charming fashion, and he is now making the best use of it.

It is quite surprising to note the rapidity with which this particular revival has dashed into favor with the Parisiennes. A month or two ago the sleeves on all the best dresses were quite short, rarely covering the elbow. Now we are rushing to the other extreme, and are gladly welcoming sleeves which extend well over the wrist.

For summer blouses semi-short sleeves will still be very fashionable, but for voile and crepe de chine dresses we shall adopt sleeves arranged in soft puffs from shoulder to elbow and finished off with a tight under-sleeve which extends right over the wrist in a graceful curve.

On some of the smart little lace and cloth coats I have noticed exceedingly short sleeves, so short that they only reach half way between the shoulder and elbow. But the intention is that these coats shall be worn over an elaborate blouse which boasted the sleeves which I have described, the single puffs and tight mitten falling over the wrists.

The little coats of which I am now speaking are Japanese in outline, and particularly effective when made of real Japanese materials. I have already warned my readers against placing too much faith in the ubiquitous kimono sleeve, because by reason of its popularity it is doomed to early death.

The dress shown on the right of our large illustration is a variation of the popular style of the moment, and is especially becoming to the maidenly wearer. Such a dress is equally suitable and smart for bridesmaids' wear or for a home dinner or concert party. Soft satin mouseline is, of course, the ideal fabric for its making, the pinfold straps of the bodice being edged with a little kilted frill and being crossed over a softness of lace and net, pale rose pink or turquoise blue, making very effective contrast with ivory lace, though, of course, an all white gown is always charming for a girl. In any case the chosen color should be repeated in the band and bow of satin, finishing off the elbow sleeves; while a ribbon to match can be twisted in the hair or tied in a big bow at the back, according to the style most favored by, and becoming to, the wearer.

Striped materials are very much a la mode this spring. Gauze striped with silk—pekinse is the French dress-making term—are the smartest of things, but the reign of striped fabrics extends through the whole list, and fine woolen materials and silks are likewise thus fashionably designed. Now, the stripe presents some difficulties to the dressmaker. Well-arranged, nothing can be smarter—ill-placed, nothing more dowdy—than a striped fabric. The more broken-up the design is, however, the fewer pitfalls are in the path of the cutter's scissors; and the present fashion in skirts is so much for trimming, or otherwise varying the fall of the lines, that it is comparatively easy to get a chic effect. In many cases, the striped fabrics are used so as to produce the effect of a trimming; and that this can be readily done is one of the virtues of such a material. For example, you may have a tablier or panels of the same stripes as the rest of the gown, but cut on the cross instead of with the lines running down, or, better still, the trimming or insertion may consist of stripes so cut, and then rejoined as to form a series of V-shaped lines. Or yet again, the stripes may run downwards from the waist to the lower third of the skirt, and there a flounce is set on of the same stripes running round the figure, slightly gathered on, or maybe

A Visiting Gown.

In biscuit-colored material, decorated black cloth and Russian braid. The sleeveless coat is one of the newest features of this spring.

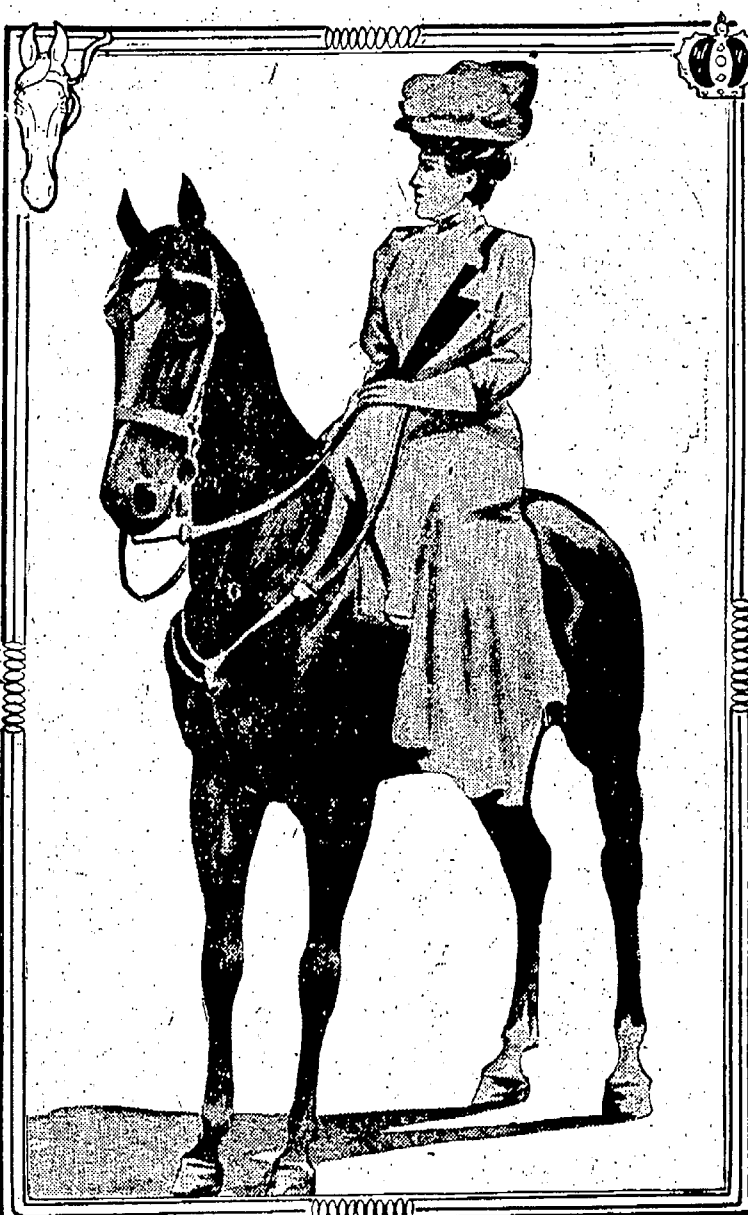

It is a flounce en forme; or the several widths of the material are cut on the cross and rejoined, to obtain a waved effect on the lines; on the flounce or flounces. There are ever so many variations possible given the fundamental idea, a clever, ingenious modiste to consider the various possibilities of the striped fabric. Then, again, what is more easy than these little tricks of cutting? And yet almost as effective is to run up some of the material with the scissors into strips, and apply these as trimming bands, and stripes, of course, being made to run in a different way from those on the ground to which they are applied. Wide bretelles, with the stripes from edge to edge, and a vest with the stripes joined herring-bone fashion, sufficed (with cuffs at the elbow matching the bretelles) to trim a blue-and-gray striped muslin and silk model gown; while on the skirt the cross-lines of the vest were continued as a tablier; and the sides were cut so as to carry the stripes in a graceful curve round over the hips, and the back of the skirt again fell in straight, long-falling lines. But it is needless to multiply detailed descriptions; you can do anything with stripes at present that will produce a smart effect; and striped materials, self-trimmed, are making many of the best gowns this spring.

World's Grandest Horse Show

AUGUSTA EMPRESS OF GERMANY

The biggest and the finest exhibition of the finest horse flesh by the world's equine enthusiasts is scheduled for London next June. Owners of fine horses in many lands, including the crowned heads of Europe, are to be among the exhibitors and prizes to the amount of $35,000 will be distributed. It will be the greatest horse show the world has ever seen, and like the New York and Chicago horse shows its social features will be among the chiefest of the attractions: The Olympia, London's largest exhibition hall, a place twice as large as Madison Square garden, New York, has been secured for the show, which opens June 7.

From time immemorial the cultivation of fine horses has been the pleasure and diversion of the leisure classes of all countries. The advent of the automobile has not diverted the interest in the horse as an exhibit. More than ever is he now the toy of the rich.

In England and on the continent the fall is older and more popular than it is in this country. Consider then, the ranks of fashionable classes, from royalty down to the wealthy countries of the world, who will be represented at the show?

Never before in the history of the world has there been a social event of such universal interest.

To America belongs the honor of originating the plan. James T. Hyde, assistant secretary of the National Horse Show Association of America, and long associated with the management of horse shows in this country, first suggested the idea a couple of years ago. The matter was presented to influential persons in England and endorsed enthusiastically. Reginald Vanderbilt last spring visited London chiefly to get the consensus of opinion regarding the feasibility of the plan. A committee was formed in England, another in America and one on the continent to ascertain the feeling of horse owners and capitalists. The report was unanimously favorable. King Edward is said to be much interested in the affair and it is about certain that he will enter some of the noted horses from the royal stables at Windsor and Buckingham. King Edward is a great lover of well-bred horses and frequently exhibits at the English shows. Queen Alexandra and the prince and princess of Wales own some of the best blooded stock in England and are sure to be interested in the project.

Emperor William will also send over some horses and will be personally represented at the show, possibly by the crown prince, while Alfonso, king of Spain, is enthusiastic on the subject. The presence of royalty will do much to add to the glory of the occasion.

The date of the exhibition is well timed, June 7 to 13, inclusive, coming between Derby and Ascot weeks, when everybody will be in town, and being followed on June 14 and 15 by the Richmond meet. It is quite probable that many of the American exhibitors will arrange to enter at several of the English open-air shows. Alfred Vanderbilt has planned to do so and may, possibly, also exhibit at The Hague.

The prize aggregate $35,000, besides which many special prizes will be offered by private individuals.

For each class there will be English, American and Continental judges. All the usual classes will be represented—saddle horses, hunters, thoroughbreds, polo ponies, roadsters, heavy harness turnouts, four-in-hands and all the varieties of horses and equipages known to horse shows.

The most beautiful horses of the world will be exhibited, and this alone will be a wonderful display.

Pretty Polly, the famous English race horse, although no longer on the course, may make a triumphant entry at the show. Most of our own celebrated horses will be there. Alfred Vanderbilt's blue ribbon, four-in-hand—Viking, Venture, Vogue and Vanity—it is hoped will repeat the successes of American shows. Primrose, Polly Prim, The Youngster, Sweet Marie and The Major, are others of Mr. Vanderbilt's string which will be represented.

Reginald Vanderbilt, who is now abroad, will also send over a long string of horses, among which probably will be the celebrated Dr. Selwina, Amazement, Astonishment, The Dictator, Scotland's Queen, Bravo and many other winners.

C. W. Watson will be represented by the high-stepping hackney Ringing Bells, which made such a sensational success at the Newport Horse Show last summer; also by Lord Baltimore, My Maryland and other favorites.

Most Dangerous Animal

Of all wild animals, including the rhinoceros with his frightful charge and his dreadful horn, including the rogue elephant with his unbounded strength, his marvelous cunning, and his villainous trunk, and including that shaggy rogue, the American "grizzly" with his rib-crushing hug, his ponderous paw and his hot, reeking maw, no beast is as dangerous to man as any one of the big cats, says a writer in Appleton's Magazine. For, besides the mouth provided with teeth that can crunch through the leg bone of a man as if it were a pipestem, each foot is provided with five pointed claws, pointed like needles and from three to four and a half inches long. As the beast strikes with these he draws the claws in, keeping hold of muscles and tendons and ligaments, and tearing them out of the flesh until they snap like rubber bands, so that unless the victim succumbs it will be months and months and sometimes years and years before he can regain the use of an injured member.

But not only do these talons tear. Curious to say, considering that although the claws are needle-pointed the edges are dull as the tip of a little finger, a cut with one of these hooks is like the cut of a dagger.

WOMAN IN THE ROLE OF A FLOWER THIEF

Beautiful Tulip Bed Looted—General Public Must Not Pluck Flowers in Parks.

Under the direction of the city park committee, the work of beautifying the court house park and other public grounds about the city, by the planting of shrubs, has been completed. The general public is now asked to refrain from trampling upon the beds or otherwise mutilating or injuring the shrubbery. Some of these plants will soon be in bloom and all persons should regard the flowers as public property, to be left for the sight of all and not to be plucked for private use. Such a request may not be necessary but it is not entirely out of place. Flower robberies have not been altogether uncommon in past years and already private beds and gardens have been looted this year. A beautiful plot of yellow tulips at the corner of South Second and Wisconsin streets was nearly stripped last evening for the third time this year. Such a misdemeanor would usually be laid at the door of some callow youth but the perpetrator this time was a woman. She was seen and identified as he completed her work last evening.

to the fact that to Rudolph Hartman, formerly instructor in the testing laboratory, belongs the credit of discovering several years ago the fact, now commonly recognized that the concrete in a beam really cracks much earlier than is shown on the surface. The tests have included investigation of the efficiency of different methods of reinforcing and preventing inclined tension failures, and other interesting matters connected with these beams.

Results of Tests. The investigation showed that the concrete cracks before evidences of the break can be detected with the eye, and that after it has cracked, though only minutely, its strength in tension is zero. Comparative tests of reinforced and plain concrete beams show that the first indications of cracking appear on the reinforced beams at about the same load at which the plain beams fail. It is evident, therefore, that concrete reinforced with steel will not stretch more before cracking than plain concrete, and that consequently the tensile resistance of concrete should not be taken into consideration in reinforced concrete design.

Tests Methods of Reinforcing. When reinforced concrete first came into general use, it was thought that horizontal bars of steel were sufficient, and the peculiar failures which often occurred were usually ascribed to the rods pulling out. The latter idea led to the invention of various forms of deformed bars now on the market. It has been found that even

Tests Reinforcement

Various tests were made in the laboratory as to the best form of steel reinforcement for concrete. The anchoring of the rods, at the ends of the beams, which has been advocated heretofore, did not seem to strengthen them materially. The experiments apparently demonstrated that the cracking in the plane of reinforcement is not due to the pulling out of the rods, but rather to the pulling of the concrete upward away from the rods, and that it therefore can not be prevented by anchoring the rods at the ends. In most reinforcement with bent rods, the angle of these rods with the horizontal has been too large, and consequently the adhesive area of the rods has been too small. Numerous tests on both large and small beams made in connection with this work have shown that these methods are not effective in preventing inclined tension failures.
